

Old cities of Turkey

There are some old cities in Turkey. Some of the cities are over 2000 years old. No one lives in the cities today, but people still visit them. The cities are under the ground. The cities had kitchens. They had meeting rooms. They had places to store serials, and they also had stables. They even had a vent or chimneys, so it was safe to breathe more than 100 Feet Under The Ground. They kept fresh air flowing through that. The cities had locking stores. The stones could only be opened or closed from the inside. The locking stones were used to keep people safe inside the cities

Answer the following questions.

Q1. Where are the old cities?

A: _____

Q2. How old are some cities?

A: _____

Q3. Cities are under the _____.

A: _____

Q4. What did the old cities have?

A: _____

Q5. Why were locking stones used?

A: _____